

ABSTRACT

Currently known transmission methods in the subscriber line area such as xDSL do not allow a reconfiguration of the xDSL link once it has been undertaken. In order to achieve greater flexibility in this regard, the invention provides that the appertaining xDSL link be dynamically reconfigured by higher level protocols.

5